

ABSTRACT

There is provided targeting drug delivery system (DDS) nanoparticles that can be accumulated in target tissues such as inflammatory sites of inflammatory diseases and can thus be utilized in a therapeutic or diagnostic DDS for locally delivering drugs or genes to the affected parts. The present invention provides a pharmaceutical composition for the medical treatment or diagnosis of an inflammatory disease comprising a sugar-modified liposome having a sugar chain bound to the membrane of the liposome.